

WIFE OBEYS MOSAIC LAW IN LAST ACT OF "ANEYE FOR ANEYE"

Throws Acid in Faces of Husband and Another Woman Watching

ATLANTIC CITY, Sept. 25.—A performance of "An Eye for an Eye," a melodrama, was nearly disrupted at the Globe Theatre here last night when police reserves responded to a riot call to quiet the audience when, the police allege, Mrs. Mollie Cantor, thirty-six, threw the contents of a three-ounce vial of carbolic acid into the faces of her husband and Mrs. Mary Kolmeksky, who were seated in the orchestra watching the show. Mr. Kolmeksky was with them.

Cantor and Mrs. Kolmeksky were taken to the City Hospital suffering from burns on the face and arms, and Mrs. Cantor was locked up, charged with assault and battery.

Jealousy, according to the police, was responsible for the alleged attack. The Cantors have been separated for some months, they say, and when Mrs. Cantor learned last night of her husband's intention to attend the performance with Mr. and Mrs. Kolmeksky she purchased the acid and a ticket.

During a tense moment in the last act, it is said Mrs. Cantor rushed down the centre aisle and hurled the acid. Kolmeksky was not struck although four persons seated nearby received small burns.

The audience was thrown into a commotion and a call for the police was turned in. After the audience had been calmed the performance was resumed.

Plenty of "Rocks" on This Boat but Booze Sleuths Find No Rye

Deck Hands Had Diamond-Covered Manicured Fingers and White Collars, but Nothing to Drink.

Shades of "The Wolf" and other gnarled taskmasters of the sea were invoked to-day as the result of the latest story of the dry navy following a visit of the Prohibition Cutter Hanson to a trim, speedy craft three miles off Montauk Point whose deckhands had manicured hands literally covered with diamonds and who wore stiff, white collars and Chinchilla overcoats. Not a drop to drink was found aboard, however.

The Hanson was on a nine-day cruise and something about the cut of the job of the Theresa Snow, bobbing at anchor, made the skipper of the Hanson suspicious. He dropped anchor and awaited developments. At night they came, when lights flickered ashore. The next morning it was decided to board the Theresa Snow. But the crew had a different idea of the matter, for the ship was off at the peep of dawn.

After a twenty-mile chase, the Hanson overtook her and the skipper of the latter craft explained he was on a fishing trip. Not a fish hook was found, however, but neither was any liquor aboard. The captain said the nattily dressed individuals were deckhands, and the skipper of the Hanson had to take this declaration at its face value and go on his way.

AUTO DRIVER VIOLATES LAW, FINED $50.
H. G. Huggard of 120 E. 11th St. was fined $50 by Magistrate John C. Thompson yesterday for driving an automobile without a license and while under the influence of liquor. Huggard ran into an automobile owned by Frank Schwab of Brooklyn on the Merrick Road yesterday.

Night Hawks Stage an Outing And Upset Quiet Long Island

Man Who Pays for Hot Dog With Fist Gets 30 Days; Singer Is Arrested and Chauffeur Is Lost.

The outing of the Night Hawks, a social club consisting of twenty men and twenty girls, with headquarters at Fourth Avenue and Twelfth Street, Brooklyn, yesterday, was fraught with stress.

One member locked in jail in Minnesota for assaulting a hot-dog vendor, one reprimanded by a Magistrate for making night hideous with song, and a chauffeur lost in the streets of Freeport, was the record made by the club, which hired a yellow sightseeing bus in Manhattan to carry its members to Blue Point, L. I., and back.

On the out trip the bus was halted half a mile east of Freeport beside the hot-dog stand of S. Jeffries. Several members bought sandwiches, including James Arrarola, twenty-one, of No. 75 Fifth Avenue, Brooklyn. Jeffries says he declined to pay for it, and hit Jeffries on the nose instead. The bus proceeded amid gales of merriment from admiring female members.

On the return trip at the same spot the bus was halted by three State troopers. The crowd of forty was ordered down and lined up in the road. Jeffries picked out Arrarola.

Arrarola was taken before Magistrate Wilbur F. Southard at Freeport. He was found guilty of assault in the third degree and was given his choice of paying $30 or taking thirty days in jail. Arrarola had no choice. His role, after the day's round of gaiety, was 20 cents. He was taken to Minnecola jail.

Joe Kelly, waiting in the bus in front of Freeport Police Headquarters, lifted up his voice in song. A patrolman yanked him from the seat and

PINNED IN HIS AUTO TO AN "L" PILLAR

Machuer Dying in Hospital After Collision With Car.

Frank Machuer, thirty-two, of No. 24 East 53d Street, Manhattan, is dying in the Wyckoff Heights Hospital, Brooklyn, of a fractured skull sustained when he was pinned in his automobile against an elevated railway pillar, after colliding with a street car at Myrtle and Javes Avenues, in the Ridgewood section, Queens, this morning. He was arrested with difficulty.

The car was in charge of Motorman Harry Driedge of No. 611 Seneca Avenue, Queens. No arrests were made.
